NRB 2020: Huckabee Offers a Cure to Poverty

By Bob Conklin

It was another great year attending the National Religious Broadcasters' 2020 Convention in Nashville. Bob Conklin, Pastor Mike and Joann Harden represented the Christian Courier Newspaper at this annual meeting of people from America and around the world, who work and minister in Christian communication.

Huckabee went on to address the ills of society today and how the answer is found in God and the family. "Fatherhood and dads really do matter. Fact is, kids need a mom and a dad. Our anti-poverty message is simple: Get married and remain married. Get at least a high school education or better. Get a job and stay employed and you'll never spend a day in poverty."

The theme of NRB 2020 was "Advocating and Equipping." Speaker after speaker reminded us how blessed we are to have freedom of religion and freedom of speech in America. We all know these rights are under attack from every angle. Mike Huckabee, former governor of Arkansas and popular TBN talk show host said, "NRB must proclaim its message to the world. We can't live in a time where everyone does what he thinks is right in his own eyes much like in the times of the judges in the Bible. It is not how serious my faith is, but how real the One our faith is in."

Lastly, don't worry. We heard a resounding reminder that we have read the Book and the last chapter. The Bible is clear that Jesus has won the victory. Do not get discouraged. In the end we win. John 15:20 was a verse that we discussed throughout the conference: "Remember the word that I said unto you. The servant is not greater than his lord. If they have persecuted me, they will persecute you; if they have kept my saying, they will keep yours also."

Commentary

A Word From The Heart

by John Duckhorn

I met John Fisco in the fall of 1959 during my senior year at Pulaski High School. It was the result of two students, both born again Christians, having shared their faith with me. John told me I needed to be saved by faith and that my sins would be forgiven by God's grace apart from works. It was a casual meeting but one that made him become concerned about my eternal status. It began my search to better understand God's message of the Bible. It was a long and intense battle, on my part. After a brief trip to California, with my estranged father, I quickly returned to Milwaukee to settle the issue. I wanted one final clear explanation of the way of salvation and decided I would seek out John for help. I became a child of God on October 7, 1959, lead to Christ by John's wise council.

John was in his early 20's and keen on doing something for the Lord. He worked for his father at Fisco Auto Paint and started to be active among college age believers. Many of them were friends from Youth For Christ days and attended various evangelical local churches. He felt they were neglected at that time, and sought to casually meet after Sunday evening services. So we began to meet, for coffee, at a Howard Johnson restaurant. Soon there was a sizeable group and a more formal get together was planned. The first meeting was held in a savings and loan just across from the church we attended. The speaker was a rocket scientist from Huntsville, Alabama and a fellow student in missionary training.

Meanwhile John had taken me under his wing. I stayed close to him and learned to be a bold witness. We handed out tracts at various events around Milwaukee and I learned to be aggressive and defend the faith. I spent a lot of time with him, soaking up his understanding of a life of faith and became more confident of God's work in my life. He would be an encouragement to me the rest of his life.

Soon John decided it would be a wise thing to turn the Sunday night coffee chats into a Bible study. John found a room at the Jolly Rogers restaurant and asked me to do some things on the Book of Romans. After I left for my first term as a missionary in Colombia, South America, that study grew in the popular Wednesday night Scanda House study with Marc Erickson. It remained an important spiritual fixture for many years. The results of that study and the people who came to know Jesus Christ as Savior, as well as those who grew in the faith, can't be known this side of heaven. John was at a time of a decision of faith. He would focus his time and attention on full time service to the Milwaukee area. His father retired, and John then decided to not continue working for Fisco Auto Paint, that now belonged to his older brother Ron. That was a huge step of faith and took John on an adventure of trusting the Lord for guidance and learning to obey the Lord. A little office was rented above a bank on Lincoln Ave and a sign hung out that said "Collegiates For Christ", which would soon be changed to ProBuColls, a more inclusive scope of John's vision for the city of Milwaukee. John had organizational skills and was soon serving various christian organizations in helping them put together conferences. He was, at times, involved with the Billy Graham organization, as well as overseeing the annual Governor's Prayer Breakfast. John's finest work was establishing houses for needy men who would live in an environment that would help them find the encouragement, both spiritually and physically, that would change their lives.

News & More

Right up to his last days the Clark House became part of the ministry of ProBuColls. The Christian Courier has been published continually since its inception and has been an informative and unifying source for the evangelical community. Of course the Pro-BuColls book store has been a great source for Christian literature. I've spent many hours there.

John was a "soul winner". I have met people who when they heard that John was my spiritual father said, they too came to know the Lord through John's love of sharing the Good News. That is John's legacy. The ministries that have been established may one day close down, but the people who have been brought to Jesus Christ will share eternal life with the Lord of Glory.

All of the above mentioned activities were a result of taking steps of faith, and letting the Lord guide his life. In the early days of my Christian walk, John and I talked about what it is to "walk by and faith and not by sight". John shared a simple illustration of walking by faith. He said it is like walking through a dark alley with a flashlight. One can only see so far ahead but each step reveals to you which way to go and what objects to avoid. Not everything is revealed at once. I practiced that in my missionary service, and John did the same while walking through this dark world. John Fisco will be remembered by all who came across his path.

Reflections on a Fruitful Life

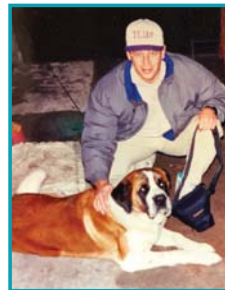

by Bob Conklin, Jr.

In John 15, Jesus says "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chose you, and ordained you that ye should go out and bring forth fruit."

In 1986, I was taking my real estate licensing classes at the downtown YMCA, 915 W. Wisconsin Ave. There was a Bible Study happening across the hall that I found myself drawn to. I wasn't a Christian believer yet but had been attending Bible studies and recently a singles retreat. I struck up a conversation with the fellow behind the back table. His name was John Fisco. Over a few months' time, I got to know John. John took an interest in me, and the night before my real estate brokers exam, he asked me if I wanted to have dinner at the Wisconsin Club. That night John asked me if I had any other questions about God and the Bible. Saying no, John asked me if I wanted to receive Christ as my personal savior and I said yes. That night, after dinner, I asked for forgiveness for my sins and for Jesus to be my Lord and Savior.

Over the next 33 plus years, I became best friends with John Fisco and helped him in ministry. John was a servant and finished his life strong. God used me in the role of caregiver for John having received a Lymphoma diagnosis in June of last year.

I can honestly say I never grew weary of giving him back a little of what he poured into me. John's last words before passing from this life to the next was mostly about "heaven and Bob, Let's get out of here." What a great memory for me and a great legacy for John. Thanks, John, for all you did and are still doing for me and so many others.

Love, Bob

Remembering John Fisco

by Jamie Christie (Lynchburg, VA)

John, I just received notice that the angels came by recently and escorted you to our Father's house in Heaven. As you know, the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ, and I'm sure you're very thankful to receive that gift and to dwell in the house of the Lord forever. I look forward to seeing you there someday.

I can't help but think of how long we've been friends and coworkers. I was saved in 1963 and first met you when I attended a Collegiates for Christ gathering after church one Sunday night. I became involved with the Collegiates and eventually I remember helping you in planning various functions for the group. One example was the road rally throughout central Wisconsin that included the Wisconsin River ferry at Merrimac.

In addition to your job at the family business, Fisco Auto Painting where you and your mother ran the office, you also had founded Collegiates for Christ, functioned as secretary for the Christian Business Men's Committee and covered the city on various errands in your black 1951 Ford Victoria with the Continental tire on the rear and the rainbow striped roof. You even had time to be the best man when I married Linda Halvorsen, 12/30/66.

Over the course of time, we both became involved with the Leighton Ford Crusade and a wide variety of other Christian outreaches throughout the Milwaukee area. I joined the Christian Business Men's Committee and once again had the opportunity to work extensively with you on events with them such as the literature booth at the Wisconsin State Fair that your dad generously supported.

Another project for several years in the 1960's was the Splendor of Sacred Song gospel concerts presented by Thurlow Spurr and the Spurrllows. Chrysler Corporation sponsored the group in high school assembly programs promoting safe driving with a large vocal group and full orchestra. In the evenings, the Spurrllows performed sacred music in local churches, culminating in a major event each year and I booked the schools and churches for the week.

In 1968, the Jaycees sponsored the Mayor's Prayer Breakfast. It was successful and I joined the Jaycees in the hope of being involved in future events. As it turned out, I became chairman for the second breakfast and since you had joined as well, you chaired the following year. Eventually, you joined with Art Riemer, President of Wisconsin Bridge & Iron and Dick Pieper, President of Pieper Electric, along with the key Milwaukee area leadership to continue the Breakfast when I was unable to participate due to my job requirements throughout Mid America. This has now evolved into the Governor's Prayer Breakfast and has been featured as a well attended program for many years. It attracts major speakers from throughout America each year.

I don't remember when Collegiates for Christ became ProBuColls, (Professional, Business, & Collegiates) but with the name change, before long, came the establishment of a bookstore featuring Christian literature, gifts, cards, Bibles and church supplies.

plies located at 20th & Wisconsin Ave. in Milwaukee. At some point, the store and ProBuColls office moved to the current locations on 97th and Greenfield Ave. in West Allis. Throughout this time, you were the efficient, full time manager of a successful growing business honoring the Lord.

When I moved to Atlanta in 1980 because of my business career, I lost track of all your obligations and involvements, John. One of the highlights, though must be the Christian Courier newspaper you founded over 40 years ago that has become the longest running Christian newspaper published in America.

ProBuColls has expanded its outreach beyond the bookstore, retreats, concerts and other events by buying several rental properties in the Marquette University area, available for reasonable cost to students. Recently, with the help of Bob Conklin, the real estate services have expanded for wider outreach.

You've had quite an influence on the Christian community in southeastern Wisconsin, John, with all the various organizations and events you have been associated with. I'm sure Jesus Himself greeted you upon your arrival in Heaven with the statement, "well done, my good and faithful servant".

'Brazil Belongs to God': Brazil's President Professes His Faith at Christian Worship Event

by Mikaela Mathews

Brazil's President Jair Bolsonaro made a surprise visit at The Send, a worship event this weekend in Sao Paulo, saying that he "believes in Jesus as his savior and that Brazil belongs to God."

Bolsonaro hasn't been quiet about his faith in recent years. According to CBN, he's considered himself a God-fearing man. His faith was strengthened during his presidential campaign and after he was nearly killed in an assassination attempt.

"Doctors who attended to me said that for every 100 stabbings of the kind I endured, only one person survives. So, I am a survivor and owe my life to God. It was His will for me to live," he said, according to Church Leaders.

As the 38th Brazilian president, Bolsonaro campaigned to make Judeo-Christian principles a high value in his administration. Known as the "Trump of the Tropics," his motto has been "Brazil above everything, God above all."

His appearance at the Send conference livened the 140,000-person crowd. "I'm utterly astounded by what God is doing in Brazil," tweeted one of the speakers, Christine Caine. "...In 31 years of ministry, I've never gone to preach the Gospel from one 65,000 seat arena straight to a 55,000 seat arena in the same day. It was surreal. God is on the move."

Reports rolled in after the weekend of thousands of people becoming believers in Jesus, enrolling to bring revival to their schools, and to give help for orphans. Almost 200 speakers preached from the stage, including Daniel Kolenda, Francis Chan and YWAM founder Loren Cunningham.

"Get ready for the greatest harvest of all times!" The Send said on their Facebook page. "What is happening today in Brazil impacts all the nations of the world. The hungriest nation is now committing to the Great Commission in a new level of obedience."

Christine Caine left the country in awe. "My biggest takeaway from being in Brazil is that I don't believe God enough," she said. "I dream too small. I expect too little. I rationalize too much. I've decided to press in for more. Dig deeper for more. Pray fervently for more. My faith has been stretched and I love it!!!"

PASTOR CALLS VICE PRESIDENT MIKE PENCE 'ONE OF THE MOST PERSECUTED CHRISTIANS IN AMERICA'

Before giving up the podium for Vice President Mike Pence to honor the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in a church service this weekend, Bishop Vincent Mathews Jr. called the vice president one of the "most persecuted Christians in America."

"One thing I love about this man of God, you know if you don't know anything, is that he is one of the most persecuted Christians in America," the world missions president of the predominantly African American Church of God in Christ said, according to The Christian Post. "The biggest criticism that he gets all over television and everywhere else is that he actually believes the Bible. They hate him for believing the Bible."

Though Mathews made it clear that the vice president was not making a campaign stop, Pence used the opportunity to honor Dr. King, as well as highlight the administration's work empowering the African American community.

"As Dr. King said in his Letter from Birmingham Jail, 'One day the South will know that when these disinherited children of God sat down at lunch counters they were in reality standing up for what's best in the American dream and for the most sacred values of our Judeo-Christian heritage.' As I stand before you today, I want to assure you that under this administration we've made every effort to open pathways to the American dream for every American and we have stood strong for the values that we hold dear.

NATIONAL PRAYER BREAKFAST SPEAKER TELLS AUDIENCE INCLUDING TRUMP, PELOSI: 'JESUS SAID LOVE YOUR ENEMIES'

In an address delivered at the 68th National Prayer Breakfast in Washington, D.C., conservative author Arthur Brooks encouraged biblical love amid a nationwide "crisis of contempt and polarization," reminding attendees that Jesus ordered His followers to love — and not just tolerate — their enemies.

Opening his speech, Brooks, a professor of public leadership at the Harvard Kennedy School and senior fellow at the Harvard Business School, described himself as a "follower of Jesus."

"[The same Jesus] who taught us to love God and taught us to love each other," he added. "Today, I'm here to talk to you about the biggest crisis facing our nation and many other nations today: It's the crisis of contempt and polarization that's tearing our societies apart."

"In this crisis resides the greatest opportunity we have ever had as people of faith to lift our nations up and to bring our people together," Brooks declared.

When it comes to an "old" problem like contempt and polarization, It's important to "think differently" to achieve a new and effective solution, he said.

Christian University Names Melania Trump 'Woman Of Distinction' For 2020, Former Student Opposes Selection

By Leonardo Blair

Calling first lady Melania Trump an "exquisite human being," Palm Beach Atlantic University, a private Christian university in West Palm Beach, Florida, has named her as their "Woman of Distinction" for 2020, citing her "Be Best" campaign. But not everyone in the school community agrees that the first lady should be honored with the award.

"During its annual Women of Distinction luncheon, Palm Beach Atlantic University honors women who cherish community and family and want to preserve these ideals for others," the university recently announced. "Women of Distinction 2020 was held February 19, and honored the First Lady of the United States Melania Trump."

A report in The Floridian said the first lady was being honored for her work on the "Be Best" campaign she launched in 2017 that focuses on healthy living among children, online bullying and opioid abuse.

"By promoting values such as healthy living, encouragement, kindness, and respect, parents, teachers, and other adults can help prepare children for their futures. With those values as a solid foundation, children will be able to better deal with the evils of the opioid crisis and avoid negative social media interaction," Melania Trump says in a video about the campaign on the White House website.

Co-chairwoman Eileen Burns told The Floridian that the first lady has represented America well at home and around the world.

"Our first lady, is an exquisite human being, a magnificent wife and life partner, a superb mother and an outstanding first lady, who represents us brilliantly in the United States and worldwide," Burns said. "Melania is a perfect example of a Woman of Distinction and we are most proud to honor her."

However, Kyra Kinnaman, a 2015 graduate of PBAU from Scottsdale, Arizona, said she was "embarrassed" by the school's decision to bestow the award to the first lady.

"I actually hope that others add to this discussion, because selecting Trump as the 2020 Woman of Distinction is a misguided, embarrassing choice at best and a calculated, amoral choice at worst," Kinnaman wrote in an op-ed for The Palm Beach Post.

She then proceeded to argue that the first lady's actions are inconsistent with the spirit of the award.

"The BE BEST campaign is not consistent with the rest of her actions as first lady. She has never criticized President Donald Trump's frequent online harassment of many people, notably including 16-year-old climate change activist Greta Thunberg — a minor," Kinnaman wrote.

"SURGEON AND PATIENT" BY CHARLES SPURGEON

When I was in Belfast I knew a doctor who had a friend, a leading surgeon there, and he told me that the surgeon's custom was, before performing any operation, to say to the patient, "Take a good look at the wound and then fix your eyes on me, and don't take them off till I get through the operation." I thought at the time that was a good illustration. Sinner, take a good look at the wound tonight, and then fix your eyes on Christ and don't take them off. It is better to look at the remedy than at the wound.

Actor Gary Sinise Brings over 1,700 Family Members of Fallen Soldiers to Disney World

By Mikaela Mathews

Actor Gary Sinise, best known for his role as Lt. Dan in Forrest Gump, took 1,750 family members of fallen soldiers on a five-day trip to Disney World.

According to a local news outlet, the trip is part of the Gary Sinise Foundation's Snowball Express. The program started in 2006 when Sinise fulfilled a fallen soldier's wish to take his kids to Disney World.

"The important ingredient is that these kids meet each other and they know they're not alone," Sinise said. "They make friendships that last a lifetime."

Families from over 87 cities throughout the world came to the "most magical place on Earth" with a surviving parent or guardian. This year marks the 14th anniversary of the Snowball Express. Partnering with corporate sponsors, such as American Airlines, the Foundation sees this trip as an important part of the family's healing process.

"I've gotten to know a lot of these families," Sinise said. "I love them and I want to just do something to help them through."

Inspired by his role as a Vietnam veteran in Forrest Gump, the actor has dedicated much of his time and charity to caring for veterans and their families. He's partnered with the Disabled American Veterans organization, participated in a few USO tours, and created the Lt. Dan Band, which travels around the world to entertain US troops abroad.

Earlier this year, Faithwire reported that the 64-year-old actor received an emotional video filled with celebrities and recipients from his foundation thanking him for all of his work to support soldiers and first responders.

"Thank you for all the things you have done for our men and women who have served our nation," retired four-star Army Gen. Colin Powell said in the video. "Not only what you've done for them but for their children, what you've done for their families, what you've done to help them rebuild their lives."

Other celebrities in the video included Tim Allen, Jay Leno, Patricia Heaton and Robert DeNiro. Actor Tom Hanks, who played alongside Sinise in Forrest Gump, even closed out the video with an enthusiastic: "Thanks, Lt. Dan!"

Franklin Graham Surprised By Backlash Over UK Evangelistic Tour

By Anugrah Kumar

Evangelist Franklin Graham has said in a media interview that he's surprised to see all the confirmed venues in the United Kingdom pulling out due to his views on homosexuality, even as his supporters have started an online petition calling it "bullying" and a "hate crime."

"I have been surprised... I'm not coming to speak against anybody and I don't name any groups of people," Graham, the son of the late evangelist Billy Graham stated, "I'm coming to tell people how they can have a relationship with God through faith in Jesus Christ."

Graham plans to tour the U.K. with eight stops starting in May, and the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, which he heads, says more than 1,800 churches across the United Kingdom are cooperating with it "to share the Gospel in multiple cities this spring."

Currently, he and his team are searching for other venues after all the original locations canceled despite having signed contracts and received deposits.

What he's most concerned about is the stifling of free speech for churches.

"... If we don't stand up for the right to free speech and freedom of religion, there are lots of churches in this country that meet in public who are at risk," he told Christianity Today. "They could be kicked out, they could be forced to go somewhere else, just because of their faith."

This isn't the first time the evangelist met opposition from LGBT groups. In 2018, bus ads for his 2018 evangelistic festival were pulled following outcry from LGBT groups.

Graham believes that the need for preaching the Gospel in the U.K. is "greater than ever."

He wants people "to know that we are all sinners and our sins separate us from God."

"And unless we confess our sins and repent, and believe on the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, we have no hope. The only hope that we have is through Christ," he continued. "And so, I'm coming to tell the people of the U.K. how they can have a relationship with God through faith in His Son, and I want people to know what steps we have to take in order to have that relationship. I'm certainly not here to speak against anyone. I'm here to speak for everyone."

However, he added, some people don't want to hear that they are sinners. "They think that this is hateful and angry speech. It's not. In love, I want to warn people and tell them the steps they need to take to have a right relationship with God, and how they can be sure their sins are forgiven."

Jesus, he continued, "is the only one to have paid the debt of sin."

Graham recently wrote to the U.K.'s LGBTQ community, explaining his stand.

"The rub, I think, comes in whether God defines homosexuality as sin. The answer is yes. But God goes even further than that, to say that we are all sinners—myself included. The Bible says that every human being is guilty of sin and in need of forgiveness and cleansing. The penalty of sin is spiritual death—separation from God for eternity."

Meanwhile, more than 10,000 people have signed a petition on CitizenGo — launched by Voice for Justice UK, a Christian group that advocates the traditional view of marriage and sexuality — defending Graham's tour of the U.K.

Graham "planned a four-month evangelistic tour of the UK, in hopes of sparking a Revival similar to that spearheaded by his father Billy Graham, in the 1950s," reads the petition, calling "for Mr Graham's bullying opponents to be investigated for hate crimes, and for Her Majesty's Government to defend the right of Christians to practise and manifest their belief without intimidation or pressure."

Graham also wrote a letter to his supporters earlier, urging prayers "that God will keep the doors open" for him to preach the Gospel in the U.K.

"For the last two years we have been preparing to go to the United Kingdom and take the Gospel to eight different cities starting in Scotland, going down to Wales, and finishing up in London," he wrote.

Pro-Life Group Delivers Nearly 380,000 Petitions In Effort To Ban Dismemberment Abortion In Michigan

By Michael Gryboski

The pro-life group Right to Life of Michigan delivers approximately 380,000 petitions calling for the ban of dismemberment abortion on Dec. 23, 2019, gathered through their petition drive known as "Michigan Values Life." | Facebook/Right to Life of Michigan

A Michigan-based pro-life group delivered 379,418 petitions to the state capitol Monday in an effort to ban an abortion procedure known as the dilation and evacuation method, or dismemberment abortion, that's performed during the second trimester.

Michigan Values Life submitted the signatures aimed at initiating the dismemberment abortion ban, well above the 340,047 number required by state law.

If enough of the petitions are certified as valid, then the legislature will have 40 days to pass the initiative, according to The Associated Press.

If the initiative is passed, according to Michigan law, then pro-choice Democratic Gov. Gretchen Whitmer will be unable to veto it, explained the AP.

"The dismemberment abortion procedure is a barbaric form of abortion that is frequently used during the second trimester of pregnancy," stated MVL on its website.

"Unborn babies between 13-24 weeks' gestation are literally dismembered alive in their mother's womb. In 2018, there were 1,908 D&E or dilation and evacuation abortions performed in Michigan."

The pro-life group Right to Life of Michigan, which oversees MVL, took to Facebook to announce the delivery of the petitions.

"Thank you so much to everyone who helped us for months with this Christmas present for the unborn," the group said Monday. "We'll keep you updated as our petition drive to ban dismemberment abortions begins its next phase!"

In the past, Whitmer has vowed to veto any legislation banning dismemberment abortions that is passed by the Republican-controlled legislature.

"I think that these are decisions that should be made between a woman and her doctor," she said in May. "I have always supported a woman's autonomy and freedom to make her own choices, and that should be no surprise to anyone in this town."

An abortion procedure commonly used in the second trimester, D&E involves dilating a woman's cervix and then using instruments to dismember and remove a fetus from the uterus.

While a few states have passed bans on dismemberment abortions, they have struggled to survive legal challenges by pro-choice groups.

For example, in November the Oklahoma state Supreme Court blocked the implementation of a 2015 state law banning D&E abortions, ruling 6-2 to issue an injunction against it.

Center for Reproductive Rights Senior Counsel Autumn Katz celebrated the injunction, calling it a victory for "high-quality, evidence-based abortion care."

"Under this law, doctors would be subject to criminal penalties for providing abortions consistent with the standard of care. This ban was motivated by politics, not medicine, and the Oklahoma Supreme Court recognized that today," Katz said last month.

More than 20,000 Orthodox Christians Flock to Jordan River to Be Baptized

By Mikaela Mathews

Earlier this year, over 20,000 Christians from around the world gathered at the Jordan River to be baptized.

According to CBN, the pilgrims commemorated the Feast of the Epiphany, which is a day that Orthodox Christians and Catholics remember when the three Magi visited baby Jesus.

The Jordan River is believed to be the site where John the Baptist baptized Jesus, as well as where the Israelites crossed over into the Promised Land and where Elijah ascended to heaven.

The annual pilgrimage started in January when five Christian denominations held baptismal ceremonies at the River. Coptic and Armenian Christians will continue with other events later this month.

Israel has embraced the Christian community trekking through their country to honor their faith.

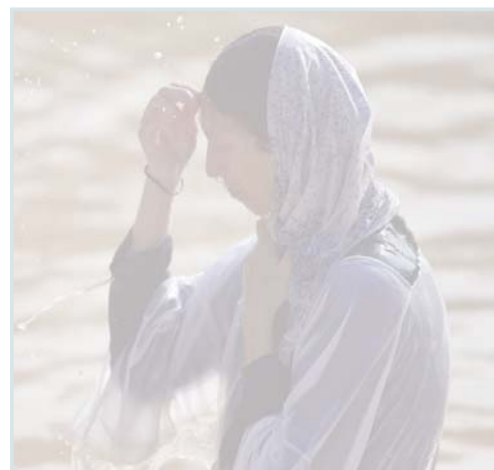

"The Civil Administration put much effort in order to prepare for these important ceremonies as part of its program to preserve freedom of religion and worship for all Christian denominations," said Jericho District Coordination and Liaison Administration head Lieutenant Colonel Eran Gross. "Thanks to the ceremonies, we see a marked rise in tourism alongside a boost to the economy, for which I am thankful. On this occasion, I would like to wish all members of the Christian community happy holidays."

For those who cannot travel to the Jordan, Christians dunk themselves into freezing rivers all over the country, including in Russia. According to the Moscow Times, stations were set up for believers and non-believers to go under the icy waters.

Israel also challenged Christians and Jews alike to maintain peace.

"Just like anti-Jewish prejudice is not Christian, anti-Christian prejudice is not Jewish," said Israeli President Reuven Rivlin. "We must recommit ourselves to countering all acts of hatred, incitement and violence, between religious communities in Jerusalem and the Holy Land. Sadly, again this year, Christians were killed in the Middle East, simply for keeping their faith. Jerusalem must serve as a model for peace and harmony between religions."

NFL Quarterback Kirk Cousins Encourages Thousands to Read the Bible

By Mikaela Mathews

Vikings quarterback Kirk Cousins finished reading through the Bible in two years and would “definitely recommend it.”

Cousins posted a photo of his personalized Bible with an “FCA” logo on the top right corner on Twitter last week.

“It took me over two years, but just finished reading through the entire Bible for the first time. Def recommend it!” he wrote. The post has received over 90,000 likes with over 6,000 comments.

One commenter agreed with him writing, “The best book you can read. I’ve read it multiple times, and now I’m reading it with my wife. God is good.”

The football star has not been shy about his faith. Earlier this year, when his team defeated the New Orleans Saints in a stunning victory, he gave airtime to God.

“My faith is important to me, it’s the foundation for my life,” he said in a post-game interview, according to CBN. “Ultimately there’s where I gain my peace and strength. Win or lose today, God’s still on the throne and I take comfort in that.”

Cousins had been under fire for an inability to perform under pressure. But the win showed his perseverance.

“This is a big deal. This is a very big deal,” said the Bleacher Report. “This can’t be emphasized enough. There were many people in football who believed Cousins would never, ever have this signature moment.”

Cousins’ Twitter bio only mentions a reference to Micah 6:8: “What does the Lord require of you? To act justly, love mercy & walk humbly with your God.”

He also tweeted in remembrance of Kobe Bryant, who passed away in a helicopter crash over the weekend. “So sad to hear of Kobe’s passing. We lost a legend,” he said. “Prayer for his family, friends and all of his fans. I believe his Mamba mentality will live on with all those he inspired.”

Two Super Bowl Players Helped Spread the Gospel Through Fellowship of Christian Athletes

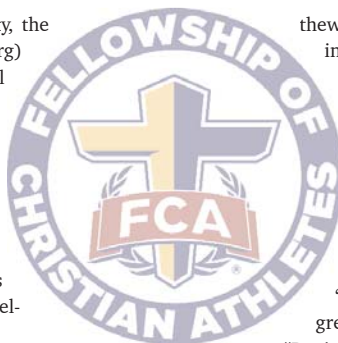

Even though the ministry is based in Kansas City, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes (FCA, www.fca.org) had ties to both sides of the field for Super Bowl LIV.

Two players in the Super Bowl—Jordan Matthews, wide receiver for the San Francisco 49ers, and Stefen Wisniewski, guard for the Kansas City Chiefs—have ties to FCA and were involved with the ministry during their days as teammates on the Philadelphia Eagles squad.

Matthews has often discussed his faith as it relates to professional sports.

“In a performance-based culture like the NFL, there’s nothing more powerful than knowing you’re already approved in Jesus Christ,” Matthews told FCA in the days leading up to the matchup in Miami. “The Super Bowl is the biggest game in the country and yet God is so much bigger. No matter what happens on that field we already have the victory.”

And back in 2017, Wisniewski told FCA Magazine that he intentionally brings Jesus into his sport by praying before every game.

“I really feel that gives me a great sense of peace,” he said. “During competition, just saying a short prayer to reset my mind on God. Always making sure to thank Him after the game for watching over me and for all that He did for me during that game.”

NFL Quarterback Aaron Rodgers Questions How Anyone Could Believe in God

By Amanda Casanova

Green Bay Packers quarterback Aaron Rodgers told Danica Patrick on her podcast, Pretty Intense, that he has questioned the existence of God.

“I don’t know how you can believe in a God who wants to condemn most of the planet to a fiery hell,” he says in the clip about growing up. He was speaking to Danica Patrick about a range of topics. Patrick is Rodgers’ girlfriend.

Rodgers says he was involved in the Christian ministry Young Life and grew up attending a nondenominational church with his parents.

In 2017, Rodgers talked about his friendship with Rob Bell in an ESPN The Magazine story. Bell is a preacher and author who wrote a book that questioned the traditional teachings of hell.

“Listing all the ways in which Rob has positively impacted my life would take up too much space; so I’ll simply say that he has inspired me to live life with a deeper level of appreciation and to love people with a greater awareness of our connectivity,” Rodgers said in an endorsement of Bell’s book, How to Be Here.

On the Bible, Rodgers said: “The Bible opens with a poem. It’s a beautiful piece of work, but it was never meant to be interpreted as I think some churches do.”

Also in the interview, Rodgers said he started to question evangelism and salvation.

He said in the interview he doesn’t identify with any affiliation and does not call himself a Christian.

“I think in people’s lives who grew up in some sort of organized religion, there really comes a time when you start to question things more,” he says. “It happens for some at an early age; others, you know, maybe a little older. That happened to me six or seven years ago.”

99-Year-Old Has Read Through Bible 60 Times: 'Might as Well Make it 61'

By Michael Foust

A 99-year-old Tennessee church member who has read through the Bible 60 times recently embarked on her 61st journey through Scripture because, she says, "God shows me something new every time."

The woman, known as "Miss Helen" to members of her congregation at The Church at Station Hill, in Spring Hill, Tenn., began reading through the Bible the 61st time after learning of a challenge by pastor Jay Strother, who urged church members to read through the Bible in one year.

The Baptist & Reflector recounted the inspiring story. The Bible-reading plan is part of Strother's "The Whole Church in the Whole Word" challenge.

"I've been through the Bible 60 times and I might as well make it 61," she told Strother.

The U.S. was embroiled in World War II the first time she read through the Bible. The challenge that year was "Read the Bible through in '42."

Miss Helen still attends the Sunday morning 8 a.m. service, in person, the Baptist & Reflector reported.

Strother asked her, "Miss Helen, why do you still do it?" She replied, "God shows me something new every time."

"She said you'd think I've heard these stories, but every time I read it or hear it being read, I catch something new," Strother told the Baptist & Reflector.

Miss Helen's commitment to reading Scripture, Strother said, should convict and inspire other Christians to read their Bible.

"You could read the entire Bible through out loud in about 72 hours," he said. "So in just a little more in the time that people usually watch TV – the typical American in two weeks – you could read the Bible through."

Strother added, "So, it's not that we don't have the time, it's that we don't choose the time."

More than 550 others signed up for the challenge after Miss Helen committed to read through the Bible again, Strother told the Baptist & Reflector.

"I love the idea that our senior saints can lead the way in setting that example for us," he said.

Miss Helen turns 100 in March.

Jackie, a Boy, and a Dog: A Warm Cold War Story by Mark D. Bruce

MARK D. BRUCE

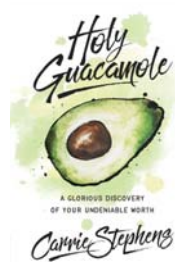

An incredible journey of life lessons, grief and unexpected friendship change the life of a young mid-western boy who accidentally kills his beloved dog during a backyard baseball game in the summer of 1963. In his grief, he reaches out to the most powerful family in the world, President and Mrs. John F. Kennedy who gave Mark a gift that changes his life. This true story not only gave this boy a dog to fill the void of his loss, but an unexpected friendship with the most iconic woman of the 20th century: Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis.

In a series of unlikely divine interventions, Mark shares the journey and fulfillment of his love for dogs, brought back to life by a remarkable little dog, Streaker. Just as amazing is the long-term friendship Mark developed with Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, and how God used that friendship to mentor him. That sense of divine calling led Mark to opportunities of great service for the Kingdom of God, while at times dangerous, incredibly rewarding and important. Streaker may have been a mutt, but his simple bloodline showed Mark that if anyone puts their giftedness in God's hands, and allows God to use them, amazing things happen.

Mark grew up with a loved for dogs. This became a focal point of Mark's childhood when President and Mrs. Kennedy gave him the "pupnik" named Streaker, the grand-pup of Strelka, the first dog to orbit earth in a Soviet Sputnik spaceship, and return alive. Mark maintained a pen-pal relationship with Jacqueline, with many personal letters, from the 1960s until the 1980s.

Mark is an emergency medicine physician in Wisconsin, a husband of 42 years to his wife Moi-ra, and a father and grandfather to five children, and seven grandchildren. Mark has travelled with an international medical ministry in Central America, Asia, Europe, and Africa, and led many teams into the Asian disaster zones for medical relief work. Clovercroft Publishing $17.99

Holy Guacamole: A Glorious Discovery of Your Undeniable Worth by Carrie Stephens

Author and speaker Carrie Stephens has a message that women of all ages need to hear: You... me...we're so much more than a plate of rice and beans. We are all holy guacamole-crafted with great skill and flair by the Master Creator.

In the pages of this book, readers will find some of Carrie's thoughts on the challenges of life, as well as the kind of hope God offers us in the midst of it all. She hopes that when women find themselves in these stories, they will also feel the presence of God and His endless love for them. She wants them to know that Christ is always with them. He is the breath in your lungs and the light dawning just when you need it most. Shiloh Run Press $14.99

Faith without Doubt, Patience, and Trust by jerushah8833

Is an ordinary life really an extraordinary life? How does a life unseen touch those who see you?

In Faith without Doubt, Patience, and Trust, the extraordinary touch and times of an ordinary woman come into focus in her last eighty-five hours of life, as she begins her journey across the River of Life, into the open hands of Jesus. She attempts to let us see what she is seeing, and as her final reckoning is made, a family motto is born: "Even when we cannot see the road ahead, we will have faith without doubt, patience, and trust."

For one woman, her fate was to become nothing more than a druggie, a prostitute, and a prisoner; when she shattered, she sat down by the water of death and wept. Where was there any hope in life for her? But that's when she heard it! His still small voice, "You are worth more than many sparrows." She looked about to discover a man who gave his dying breath to grant her a more abundant life - and she was sold! LifeRich Publishing $15.99

Fighting For My Life: How I used the Word of God in My Battles With Illness by Pastor Lloyd W. Wright, Sr.

In 2011, Pastor Lloyd W. Wright, Sr., a Milwaukee native, celebrated his 50th birthday, and in January of that year he underwent a precautionary colonoscopy at the recommendation of his physician. He was shocked when the results revealed that he had colon cancer. Pastor Wright would eventually be diagnosed with colon cancer two more times, but was encouraged each time as the Holy Spirit spoke and revealed to him that cancer would not claim his life. He underwent three surgical procedures, and chemotherapy in order to remove the cancer. During chemotherapy, after the third round of surgery, Pastor Wright suffered a stroke which caused temporary amnesia. Immediately after he regained consciousness, he did not even know his own name. Throughout his eight-year battle with illness, Pastor Wright relied on scripture and prayer to help bring his cancer into remission and to complete the exhausting physical therapy program necessary to regain the ability to walk, read and drive, among other challenges. In Fighting for My Life, Pastor Wright describes the many setbacks and disappointments he endured along the path to recovery. $10.00

Postal Worker Gives Glory to God after Finding Missing Toddler

by Mikaela Mathews

A USPS worker is giving God the credit for being at the right place at the right time when he found a toddler who had been missing all night.

According to Christian Today, two-year-old Ethan Adeyemi disappeared from his home in Howard County, Maryland, around 10:20 pm last Wednesday night. He wandered barefoot along a Maryland highway the whole evening in only a sweatshirt and sweatpants.

Neighbors, K9 units, helicopters, drones, firefighters and police officers had been scouring the area for hours after the family reported him missing. But it was until Keith Rollins, the U.S. Postal worker who saw him at 8 AM, picked him up that he was safe.

Rollins was driving to work only a half-mile away from the child's home when he saw him on the side of the road, according to WJZ in Baltimore.

"He had only a pair of sweatpants and sweatshirt, no shoes or socks," said Rollins. "So I walked up to him. I said, 'Hey, buddy. How you doing? What's your name? Are you OK?' He looked at me, but I didn't get a response from him."

The child was shivering, "wet to the bone and had no socks, no shoes."

So Rollins "decided to scoop him up" and take him back to his truck.

"I had a sweater that I tried to cover him up with, and turned up the heat and I called the police back and said that I had the little boy in my vehicle, and within a matter of minutes, the police were there," he said.

Adeyemi was rushed to the hospital for hypothermia after being found but remains in good condition.

Rollins doesn't consider himself a hero.

"Giving glory to God that I was able to help at that particular time and be in the correct place at the right time," he said. "[It] could've been a totally different story. He was blessed."

NEARLY ALL U.S. PRESIDENTS HAVE BEEN CHRISTIANS

According to the Pew Research Center, almost all of the United States presidents have called themselves Christians. And half of them were Episcopalian or Presbyterian, including current President Donald Trump.

Though presidents are not required to adhere to any religion in order to be elected to the highest office in the land, a large majority of them have clung to religion and the Bible as they rose to the top, according to Fox News.

The largest group represented is Episcopalian with 11 presidents including H.W. Bush, Ford, F. Roosevelt, Arthur, Pierce, Taylor, Tyler, W. Harrison, Monroe, Madison, and Washington.

Following the Episcopalians are Presbyterians. Trump claims to adhere to this denomination, calling it a "wonderful religion." He's joined with Reagan, Eisenhower, Wilson, B. Harrison, Cleveland, Buchanan, Polk, and Jackson.

Baptists, Unitarians, Methodists, non-denominational Christians, and Disciples of Christ have smaller amounts.

TACTICS FOR DISCUSSING YOUR CHRISTIAN CONVICTIONS

Solomon once said that of the writing of books, there is no end. The sheer number of books available online today is overwhelming, and there's nothing worse than wasting time or money on a terrible book. A helpful clue to reveal the quality of a book is whether or not it has stood the test of time.

Another indicator, though not nearly as reliable, is how many have sold.

On both of these counts, the book "Tactics: A Game Plan for Discussing Your Christian Convictions" by my friend Greg Koukl, passes with flying colors. In fact, it's sold so well for so long, "Tactics" is now available in an expanded and updated 10th-anniversary edition.

The expanded 10th-anniversary edition, with several new chapters and updated examples that take into account the ways our culture has changed since 2009, means that this edition supplants the old one as one of the best resources ever produced to equip Christian to engage in tough conversations with skeptics and unbelievers—and, by the way, even with fellow believers who might be fuzzy on the key teachings of our faith.

The resurrection proclamation could not have been maintained in Jerusalem for a single day, for a single hour, if the emptiness of the tomb had not been established as a fact. ~ Paul Althus, Theologian

MASTER P AND ROMEO NOW MAKING CHRISTIAN CONTENT: 'I WANT MY CAREER TO BE ABOUT GOD'

Mainstream celebrities Master P, born Percy Robert Miller, and his son, Romeo Miller, attended the 28th annual Movieguide Awards where they revealed that they've veered away from their past hip-hop messages to create content that reflects their Christian faith.

While on the red carpet, Master P acknowledged the importance of being at an awards show that celebrates faith and family films.

"Romeo has started a brand, Romeo Land, and it's all about having great content," he said.

Along with his roster of businesses, the hip-hop and sports mogul said his movie company, Genius Minds Pictures, and his son's new company, Romeo Land, are gearing up to release a Christian film.

"We have our first faith-based movie coming out, it's called, 'God Is Real.' So people are going to see this everywhere," he said.

"Don't be afraid to grow and change," Master P maintained. "Where I come from, I come from the streets, I come from the struggle and pain. Without God, I wouldn't be here. So why not change and grow up and do right?"

Along with "God Is Real," Romeo is starring in the faith-based movie, "Can You Hear the Lamb."

"I've had a lot of success, over 19 years in this industry, I started very young," Romeo stated "That success is because of God."

"I seen a lot of my cousins pass away when I was younger. I saw my cousin die when I was 8 years old. In that moment, I knew that we're on this Earth for a reason. It's a bigger purpose," he testified.

Virginia Couple Wins Battle To Hold Bible Study At Retirement Center: Settlement

By Michael Gryboski

A Virginia couple who were threatened with eviction from their retirement home if they continued to hold Bible study meetings have won the right to hold classes again.

Kenneth and Liv Hauge recently reached a settlement with the Evergreens at Smith Run in Fredericksburg, allowing them to continue holding Bible classes and movie screenings at the community room.

First Liberty Institute, a conservative law firm that represented the Hauges, announced the settlement on their Twitter account on Wednesday.

"BREAKING: 2020 just began and we're celebrating a VICTORY that vindicates the right to worship in your own home," they tweeted.

"The FLI Legal team reached a settlement for Ken and Liv Hauge that allowed their group to gather for their first Bible study since being banned from meeting in 2018."

In July 2018, the Community Realty Company, the parent company for Evergreens, sent a notice to the Hauges saying they must stop holding their Bible study at the senior living center's community room or face eviction.

According to the notice, the weekly Bible study "caused, and continues to cause, serious and substantial disturbances with other residents in the community."

"Landlord has received a series of complaints over the past several months regarding your conduct at the community," read the notice in part.

"Landlord has also learned that you show religious films on Sunday evenings, followed by a group discussion on the religious film. This activity has resulted in complaints to Landlord similar to those related to the Bible study class."

The landlord said in the notice that the residential business was not threatening the couple with eviction because of their Christian beliefs nor was it "requesting that you cease practicing your religion."

Last May, the couple filed a lawsuit against Evergreens and CRC, arguing that management had discriminated against them and others on the basis of religion.

In addition to the ban on the Bible study, the suit also alleged that the Evergreens was prohibiting prayer before meals and refusing to allow them to call it a "Bible study," but rather a "book review."

The Bible Could Become Tennessee's 'Official State Book' under New Bill

By Michael Foust

Four years after Tennessee's governor vetoed a bill that would have made the Bible the "official state book," the sponsor of that bill is trying again.

State Rep. Jerry Sexton, a Republican, filed a bill Wednesday that would designate "the Holy Bible as the official state book," according to a description of the bill on the legislature's website.

In 2016, then-Gov. Bill Haslam, a Republican, vetoed a similar bill by Sexton. But he was ineligible to run for re-election after serving two terms and was followed by a new governor, Bill Lee, who also is a Republican. Lee has not taken a position on Sexton's bill.

Sexton previously said his bill would acknowledge the role the Bible has played in the state's past.

"There is no denying our history," Sexton said in 2015, according to Baptist Press. "The Bible has certainly had a pivotal role in the history of our state as well as our nation. The Bible also plays a significantly important role in our state today with several companies in Nashville being responsible for publishing more Bibles than possibly any other city in the world."

"Making the Bible our official state book," he added, "isn't a violation of either our Constitution or the U.S. Constitution. It is simply a recognition of its historical importance. To preclude the Bible simply because it is religious in nature is anathema to the First Amendment."

Haslam vetoed the bill and, in a letter, said the bill "trivializes the Bible, which I believe is a sacred text."

"If we believe that the Bible is the inspired word of God, then we shouldn't be recognizing it only as a book of historical and economic significance," Haslam wrote. "If we are recognizing the Bible as a sacred text, then we are violating the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of Tennessee by designating it as the official state book."

SINGER CHYNNA PHILLIPS SAYS JESUS IS THE 'WAY, THE TRUTH AND THE LIGHT'

Chynna Phillips, the well-known singer who is also one of the music industry's most outspoken Christians, says her niece and nephew-in-law — Hailey Baldwin and Justin Bieber — can make a difference for the kingdom of God.

"They are awesome examples of what it is to be a Christian and I feel like they're going to help pave the way for other young people to see it in a new light and see that Christianity is cool," Phillips told the New York Post's Page Six.

Phillips, 51, is a member of the group Wilson Phillips and the daughter of John and Michelle Phillips of the 1960s group Mamas and the Papas. Her husband is William Baldwin, whose brother, Stephen, is Hailey's father.

Phillips holds a Bible study in her Los Angeles home. Bieber and Hailey Baldwin don't attend the Bible study, but Phillips said it "would be really fun" if they did.

Phillips experienced a spiritual reawakening after her daughter, Brooke, was born in 2004, she said.

Christians in China Courageously Share Gospel in Coronavirus Crisis Zone

By Tim Tune

As if rallying around the apostles' declaration that "We must serve God rather than men" (Acts 5:29), Christians continue to boldly share the Gospel in the streets of Wuhan, China, the epicenter of the coronavirus outbreak. Witnesses who share their faith openly not only face possible infection from the dangerous respiratory disease caused by the virus, but also could be subject to potential persecution by authorities, as well.

Despite the potential dangers, CBN News Asia correspondent Lucille Talusan reports that Christians in Wuhan are meeting needs created by the crisis and by doing so are creating opportunities to share the Gospel.

The believers, often operating underground to avoid persecution and prosecution by Communist authorities, are taking advantage of the need for surgical masks. In addition to helping prevent contracting the respiratory disease caused by coronavirus, the masks also help shield the identity of the witness.

Talusan reported that a "very courageous" group of Christians in Wuhan have hit the streets to distribute the protective facemasks. As they hand out the masks, Talusan said, "They say that they are Christians and they share the love of Christ and point to Jesus to bring hope to them and their families and the whole of China. ... This is really a breakthrough."

Talusan said that the uncertainty of the crisis has helped heighten the receptiveness to the message of Christ.

While the Chinese Communist government includes Christianity-based Catholicism and Protestantism among the nation's five officially sanctioned religions, activities of these faith traditions require registration and are subject to complex state-regulatory agencies that manage "all aspects of religious life, including religious leadership appointments, selection of clergy, and interpretation of doctrine," according to the U.S.-based Council on Foreign Relations (CFR).

'Watered-Down' Gospel in U.S. Is Major Concern for 72 Percent of Pastors

by Michael Foust

The prevalence of a "watered-down" gospel and the culture's shift to a secular age are the leading concerns among Protestant pastors about the Christian church in the United States, according to a new Barna survey.

Barna surveyed 547 U.S. Protestant pastors and asked them which issues they believed were a major concern facing the U.S. Christian church.

Seven issues topped 50 percent: Watered-down gospel teachings, 72 percent; culture's shift to a secular age, 66 percent; poor discipleship models, 63 percent; addressing complex social issues with biblical integrity, 58 percent; prosperity gospel teachings, 56 percent; reaching a younger audience, 56 percent and political polarization in the country, 51 percent.

Three issues topped 40 percent but failed to reach 50 percent: Negative perceptions of the church, 46 percent; the diminished influence of churches in the community, 45 percent and church leader burn-out/exhaustion, 40 percent.

Few of those issues, though, were mentioned as a major problem when pastors were asked – in a separate question – to list their major concerns for their own church. On that list, only two issues topped 50 percent, with a total of nine reaching at least 20 percent: Reaching a younger audience, 51 percent; declining or inconsistent outreach and evangelism, 50 percent; declining or inconsistent volunteering, 36 percent; stagnating spiritual growth, 34 percent; declining attendance, 33 percent; biblical illiteracy, 29 percent; declining or unpredictable giving patterns, 28 percent; lack of leadership training and development, 23 percent and not reflecting the demographic of the community, 21 percent.

"It's worth noting that many of the possible issues listed above regarding the Christians Church in the U.S. generated a strong general response compared to the more localized ones," a Barna analysis said. "This full ranking alludes to many of the opportunities, debates and divisions taking place within the Church right now, from leader burnout to church abuse scandals to women's roles in ministry."

The survey was conducted between Nov. 15 and Dec. 17 and released Feb. 3.
